Failure of the Bounty Grab.

President Grant came to the rescue of the tax-payers and the defense of the National Treasury in the last hour of Congress, when both people and Treasury had been abandoned by both Houses of Congress. He refused to sign the hugest grab of the session—the so-called Bounty Equalization bill—and would have sent in a veto message, it is reported, if there had been time.

The iniquities of the bill as finally passed were conceived in the Senate. As the bill came originally from the House it was objectionable only on the score of hard times and an empty Treasury. It provided for the payment of bounty at the rate of $100 a year for the time of actual service to all who had carried arms in the Union army during the war of the Rebellion, after deducting in each case any Federal, State, county or local bounty that had been paid. This was literally an "Equalization" bill, since it provided for the payment of bounty to actual soldiers who had enlisted and borne armes from patriotic motives and had received no other compensation than the pay of the regular troops. But the moment the bill reached the Senate, some of the demagogues of that body—including those who imagine themselves Presidential candidates—scented an opportunity for making political capital at the public cost, and the bill was loaded down with amendments destroying its original character, and embracing the following classes:

1. The Home Guards—taking in tens of thousands of men in Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and other border States, of doubtful loyalty, who merely did guard duty at home over their own and neighbors' property, were never under fire in the United States service, and received all the pay that was promised to them.

2. Teamsters, wagoners, artificers, musicians, and all the manifold dependents of active army service, who are not enlisted, rarely if ever incur danger, and enter the service of the Government for the same motives they would enter private service.

3. All the ex-slaves who had been in any way attached to the army, and who were amply paid in gaining their emancipation from slavery.

4. Certain Indian tribes in the West who had engaged in war for a period with other Indians of supposed Rebel proclivities.

5. Seamen engaged all along the Atlantic coast and on the rivers in transportation business.

6. Even these additions did not satisfy the reckless demagogues, and they made a final, grand and comprehensive bid for votes by striking out the provision deducting State and local bounties. They thus destroyed the equalization feature of the bill, and provided for paying those who enlisted in the latter part of the war, and who received local bounties ranging from $300 to $1,000, at just the same rate as those who enlisted early in the war and did not receive a dollar of local bounty.

The Senate amendment changed the original appropriation of $25,000,000 or $30,000,000 to $150,000,000 or $200,000,000. The Senate then added the provision that the Secretary of the Treasury might sell bonds and increase the public debt to any amount necessary to pay the multitudinous claims under this monstrous bill. Had the bill been permitted to become a law, it would have absorbed all the revenue from the new Tax bill for two or three years to come, and also added $100,000,000 to the national debt.

The Senate amendments were agreed to in the Conference Committee, approved by the House, and rescued from oblivion in the Senate by the special effort of Vice President Wilson, who was trying to out-bid Gen. Logan for Presidential votes. The bill was only defeated at last by President Grant's refusal to sign it; and the country may thank him for saving $150,000,000 or $200,000,000 of the public funds from a reckless, indiscriminate and unjust distribution. The next Democratic Congress will scarcely care to seek votes by reviving this scheme of wholesale plunder of the tax-payers.—Chicago Tribune.

Piety and Porridge.

All of which reminds me that another one of our celebrated divines has turned story-teller, and is now giving his ideas through the columns of a religious weekly. Prof. Swing's serial is entitled, "A Story of Brown Bread," and it seems to be a relation of the mysterious connection between piety and porridge. In the guise of a narrative of persons and things the Professor discusses in a very effective and satirical way many of the points involved in the late controversy between himself and Rev. Dr. Patterson. To show the manner in which the discussion is introduced, I have only to quote from the last chapter published. An enthusiastic believer in the intellectual efficacy of brown bread requests a friend to eat large quantities for ten days, and then try his brain by writing a thesis upon some grave and practical topic. The patient took to his diet, and that he might not be confounded by any other influence, the universe was as far as possible "reduced to two quantities or factors—a soul and some oat-meal." On the ninth day the patient expressed an intense desire to write, and upon the morning of the tenth day he finished his thesis with an ease and rapidity before unknown in his experience. This thesis was entitled "Theology and Brown Bread," and it was a most wonderful production. Permit me to quote sentences at random: "The everlasting principle which underlies this world is the principle of sin and misery." * * * "Oh! sublime harmony of total depravity and brown bread! Had not Adam fallen, the human family might have digested lobster salad and clam chowders, but in the ruin of paradise the kitchen went down also, and the happiness of deglutition retreated into that subdued and doubtful pleasure which comes from a tongue moist in oat-meal soup." * * "Would we could all consume saw-dust, and thus be in harmony with a world subject to wrath," and so on to a considerable length. The patient momentarily grew more and more excited, and after his two auditors had heard him for the space of an hour they cried, "Enough; let us here rest the debate." Then, says the author, "putting on their silk gowns and lightning points, the three friends walked out in the open air to meditate in silence on the mystery of depravity and tasteless food. They reached this conclusion: 'That saw-dust is food good enough for a man born in sin and iniquity.'" The story, which has only reached the fifth chapter, is, when finished, to be published in book form. It is to be hoped that in that shape the point of the story will be made apparent. In its present form it seems a little obscure, to say the least.—Chicago Letter.

Popping the Question.

The celebrated preacher Whitefield proposed marriage to a young lady in a very cool manner, as though Whitefield meant a field of ice. He addressed a letter to her parents without consulting the maiden, in which he said that they need not at all be afraid of offending him by a refusal, as he thanked God he was quite free from the passion called love. Of course, the lady did not conclude that this field, however white, was the field for her.

A Scotch beadle was the one who popped the question in the grimmest manner. He took his sweetheart into the graveyard, and showing her a dark corner, said, "Mary, my folks lie there. Would you like to lie there, Mary?" Mary was a sensible lassie, and expressed her willingness to obtain the right to be buried near the beadle's relations by uniting herself to him in wedlock.

Richard Steele wrote to the lady of his heart: "Dear Mrs. Scurlock (there were no misses in those days), I am tired of calling you by that name, therefore say a day when you will take that of madam, your devoted, humble servant. Richard Steele." She fixed the day, accordingly, and Steeled her name instead of her heart to the suitor.

A Scotch maiden upon her lover remarking, "I think I'l' marry thee, Jane," replied, "Man Jock, I would be muckle obleeged to ye if ye would."

After waiting four years, a Michigan lover finally popped the question, and the girl answered: "Of course I'll have you! Why, you fool you, we could have been married three years ago!"

A Water-Finder.

A New-Hampshire correspondent says that Capt. John S. Godfrey, of Hampshire Falls, who has gone to California to locate wells, never fails in his "manifestations" as to where water can be found. He works thus: With nothing in his hands, he walks over the ground until the water, if any exists, is approached, when he is affected with a nervous twitching in the limbs, which increases as the water is neared; he is all the time acting like a person with the bars of a magnetic battery in his hands, and following the course of the spring or stream, wherever it may lead, regardless of walls, fences, or other obstacles, and seeming to be controlled and directed by some power which he is unable to resist. Capt. Godfrey claims no supernatural power in the accomplishment of his work, but declares it to be simply a sensitive organism or powerful current of electricity in himself, so powerful as to attract him irresistibly to living streams and mineral deposits beneath the surface. During the late war he located all the wells for the use of the army under General Howard's command, and at Hampton Falls, N. H., where land was rendered valueless for want of water, he located streams which now supply all needed demands.

Born in the Street.

—Describing the casualties on the night of the 1st of January in Paris, when it was so slippery, a correspondent writes: "There was one accident which probably has no parallel. A woman living in the Rue Ramsey was near her accouchement, and had made an arrangement with a lying-in hospital for the event. Being taken with labor-pains on this night, she ran hastily out and fell near her own door. She tried to rise, and after slipping about for a moment fell again to the ground. She cried for help. Two gendarmes had already seen her and were going toward her, falling two or three times themselves, and on hearing the state of the case they tried to help the poor woman on between them. The three fell together, and then again, and then the woman's pains prevented her from walking. The gendarmes took off their boots, and in their stocking feet took the poor suffering creature in their arms, moaning piteously at each step. But at length she ordered a halt, and the child was born upon the overcoat of the gendarme. He took off his overcoat to wrap up the little stranger, and carried him safely to the hospital, while his bare footed companions carried the mother. Strange to say both mother and child are now doing very well indeed. But for these brave men both must have died in the street."

Many years ago a rich man foreclosed a mortgage on a poor man, with contemptuous words and gestures, turned the poor man into the street. The poor man came to Chicago and became a millionaire; the rich man went to St. Louis and bought a newspaper. Time at last made all things even, and the St. Louis journalist came to Chicago last week with a linen duster, and by accident met his debtor of many years ago. The latter recognized his heartless creditor, but did not sneer at his misery nor refuse to help. "Smith," he said, kindly, "by-gones be by-gones. I will do what I can for you. Take this note to Mr. Webb and he will find you a berth on the Van Buren street-cars as driver." And Mr. Webb did, and Smith froze nine toes, eight fingers, two thumbs, his nose, and both his cheeks, that night. The debtor was avenged.—Chicago Tribune.

—Roosters, says Josh Billings, are the pugilists among birds, and, having no suitable sholder to strike from, they strike from the heel. When a rooster gets whipped, the hens all march off with the other rooster, if he ain't haff so big or hansum. It is pluck that wins a hen. Roosters az a class won't do enny household work; yu kan't git a rooster tu pay enny attention tu a yung one. They spend most of their time in crowing and struting, and once in a while find a worm, which they make a great fuss over, calling their wives up from a distance, apparently to treat them, but jist az the hens git there, this elegant cuss bends over and gobbles up the worm. Jist like a man for all the world!

—A pretty little story of last Christmas is told in a French journal. Among the French either a shoe or a stocking is hung, on Christmas eve, to receive the gifts of Santa Claus. Two poor people were regretting their inability to put any present in the shoe of their little one, and were hoping for better things next year, when the child rushed in, with wild delight, calling out, "See what Le Petit Foel has sent me! I must indeed have been good;" and she showed the parents a poor, starved little sparrow, which had taken refuge from the cold in the baby's shoe. The sparrow ever since has had a snug home, and has been regarded by the little girl as a precious gift.

—"How much is yer stick candy?" enquired a boy of a candy dealer, on Tuesday. "Six sticks for five cents." "Six sticks for five cents, eh? Now lem' me see, six sticks for five cents, five fer four cents, four fer three cents, three fer two cents, two fer one cent, one for nothin'. I'll take one," and he walked out, leaving the candy man in a state of bewilderment, which lasted three days.

—This is the way an exchange puts it: "When you want a notice of some enterprise in which you are interested, 'sponge' on your local paper, but if you want any printing done, give your order to some drummer out of town, or some job office which cannot aid your enterprise by giving it a notice."

—"Sir," said a Yankee, "you promised to vote for my bill." "Vell," said the Dutch member, "vat if I did?" "Well, sir, you voted against it." "Vell, vat if I did?" "Well, sir, you lied!" "Vell, vat if I did?"

—A bunch of shingles fell from a boat on the head of a negress, who sounded back, "Y' ought ter b' shame to muss a cullud wom'n har dat way. I wish de shingles fell ovahboa'l!"

In making the TRIBUNE larger and more complete in appearance than any paper in Oakland, we may appear to be taking some risks, but the fact is, the want of such a daily journal in this city has forced itself upon us, hence the greatly increased size herewith presented for the first time. An evening paper is more desirable in a community than a morning, for the reason that people have more time to read it, and therefore it should at least be more complete in size and contents. The TRIBUNE has pushed itself to where it is, not so much by giving all the local news in a readable shape, but more by its bold style of discussing every question of local interest, and by always advocating what is really the people's side of a case. The price of the paper remains the same, and altogether we consider it the best and cheapest local journal in the State. We shall endeavor to make it better every day.

SHERIFF ADAMS, of San Jose, has issued 300 permits to persons wishing to witness the hanging of Vasquez.

OUR San Jose free love cotemporary will find substantial encouragement in the story of the gipsies, as reported in our local colums.

> As near as can be ascertained, about twenty women are making all the fuss throughout the country about women's rights, dress reform and kindred social topics. This is a remarkable illustration of woman's power.—Exchange.

This is a direct reflection upon the influence of the San Jose Mercury. At last accounts the editor of that paper did not wear long hair.

THE local option people are not getting much encouragement from the Atlantic States, according to the dispatches. The election in New Hampshire was a defeat to the extreme temperance advocates; about the same time the Legislature of Indiana repealed an extremist law on temperance, substituted a license law in its place, and now comes the report that the Legislature of Pennsylvania has repealed a regular local option law, and enacted a license regulation. So they go.

THE Nevada Transcript has this to say about the incarceration of Philosopher Pickett for contempt of the Supreme Court:

> It is probable that they would have issued an order for his release long ere this had it not been so strenuously demanded by the papers generally.

The Court is placed somewhat in the position of Grant respecting the third term. The howl of the opposition press to make him take back what he never said, makes no impression upon the sphinx of the White House. It does look, however, as if Pickett were destined to serve out his first term in jail because the Court has been called all sorts of hard names; in short, that body has been abused like a pickpocket. The trouble is that human nature is about the same in high and low places, on the score of pride and stubbornness.

A DISPATCH from New York city says the Catholics there have proposed a compromise on the public school question. They want all the moneyed benefits of the system, but still have the tenets of their church taught in every day school. As telegraphed, we cannot see where the compromise comes in. It is the same old fight in disguise. Why in the name of sense either Protestant or Catholic, or other religious denomination whatever, should de sire to force their doctrines upon the State, we cannot see. It would be just as reasonable to ask a manufacturer or merchant—having boys engaged in learning the business, to open his shop or store with prayer every morning. The teaching of the common branches in public schools, is certainly nothing more than teaching a child the use of any other sort of tools. If the public schools were gotten up exclusively to turn out preachers, instead of intelligent farmers, mechanics and merchants, it would be well enough to listen to these religious arguments for and against the bible in schools, and all that. As it is, we have no patience with any of the parties to the controversy—we mean the religious portion of the disputants. We believe if the politicians were not so generally selfish and demagogical, the whole question would soon be rightly disposed of.

THE long absence of rain and the repeated instances of northern and drying winds, are anything but pleasant to re[illegible] upon. Last Saturday's 'norther' was bad enough, but that of last night and this forenoon is positively alarming. There is no use in denying the fact, that Californians resort more and more every year to irrigation. The State is remarkably free from plagues and pests, after the manner of the grasshoppers and [illegible] east of the Rocky Mountains, but we do have dry seasons, which [illegible] deuce with cro[illegible] [illegible]h as [illegible] [illegible]tey and so forth. [illegible] [illegible] the farmers [illegible] asking assist[illegible] [illegible] not unlike the [illegible] sufferers, and if these [illegible] continue a week or two [illegible] amount of rain will save the [illegible] [illegible] whenever the winds [illegible] there should be a grand sys[illegible] [illegible] devised, and every [illegible] done toward putting the [illegible] working shape. The [illegible] such a system of internal [illegible] it should be carefully laid [illegible] can never be but partially de[illegible] without resorting to irrigation [illegible] [illegible]ise scale, and how to go [illegible] a problem worthy [illegible] [illegible]

GOV. BOOTH'S SUCCESSOR.

It seems to us now, if not [illegible] [illegible] Gov. Booth did not resign [illegible] [illegible] too soon. When we come to contrast—there is no such thing as comparison in the case—the action of Gov. Booth with respect to the murderer Donovan, of Contra Costa, with that of Gov. Pacheco and Vasquez, we are only too glad that the late shilly-shally chief Executive of California, has gone from our gaze.

These cases, where men are sentenced to be hanged for the most heinous offenses, are perhaps calculated to try the nerve of the average Governor or ruler of a State, but in the cases of Donovan of Contra Costa, Russell of San Francisco, and another murderer of Stockton whose name we cannot this moment recall, Ex-Governor Booth displayed the most inexcusable weakness, to call it by no harsher name; in short, it showed that the great Newton was really an unfit man for the great position. It was thought that he wanted to make a political point in the Donovan case, but then in that of Russell, where the Governor fled the scene and got into the middle of Lake Tahoe, where the petitioners could not reach him by telegraph, it seemed conclusive that Newton was either an abject coward, or a miserable sentimentalist. In regard to the Stockton murderer, the great Independent chief was scarcely less guilty of displaying the white feather, and making a toy of the most serious interests of the State.

Now, contrast the language and action of Pacheco with that of his weak-kneed predecessor? The present Governor does not listen for a moment to the pleadings in favor of the highwayman murderer—a sort of abused hero in the eyes of thousands of people throughout the State. The three strong influences of politics, religion and nativity do not make the slightest impression upon the present Governor. On Tuesday of this week, Governor Pacheco received several letters and telegrams from San Jose and Los Angeles, urging that Vasquez, who is to be hanged on Friday next, be reprieved. His decision was announced in a dispatch to Vasquez' counsel, of which the following is a copy:

> SACRAMENTO, March 16th, 1875.
> To W. H. Collins, San Jose, California — Your letter is received. I am unable to perceive any good reason for intervening between Vasquez and his sentence; nor is there any feature of the case that can with propriety be invoked to delay the vindication of the law. A plea for mercy is always strong and persuasive, but the quality of that mercy is not genuine which prolongs misery when there remains no hope. I profess to be humane, but humanity does not require his reprieve, which could only afford him a few more days of suffering.
> R. PACHECO, Governor.

Subsequently the following was telegraphed to Los Angeles, in reply to a dispatch setting forth that the execution of Vasquez would just now endanger the lives of innocent persons:

>
> To Ygnacio Sepulveda, Volney E. Howard, and others, Los Angeles, California —Your dispatch is received. I have already officially refused to reprieve Vasquez, after a careful examination of his case, and have made a formal announcement of the decision. I do not think any danger that may exist from the gang could be avoided or lessened by a postponement of the execution There would be the same condition of affairs at the end of the delay, and for these reasons I must decline to interfere.
> R. PACHECO, Governor.

Here are two distinct and strong appeals for a delay in the execution of Vasquez, and the Governor's replies are both no less courteous than firm. It will be remembered that the Chavez gang have threatened all sorts of things, in case the sentence of Vasquez be carried out, but the new Governor does not hesitate an instant, and it is to be hoped that he will not, and that justice be meted out to the bloody criminal, doomed to be hanged at San Jose to-morrow. It is refreshing to see the new Governor start out so satisfactorily, in contrast with the actions of his predecessor in a variety of instances.

MORTGAGING THE SUFFERING

According to Gen. Brisbin's account of the Kansas-Nebraska case, the near approach of the millenium is sadly interfered with. It is possible that the lion and the lamb may be found lying together without being telescoped, but man's inhumanity to man continues to make countless thousands mourn in such a variety of ways, that the good time coming seems more indefinite than ever. Some one has said that man differs more from man, than man from beast, and Brisbin's story seems to confirm this estimate on the part of the satirist.

We have been more or less confused all along on the subject of suffering Kansas, etc., by reason of very conflicting reports from there. Gen. B., however, explains these reports in this way: That those people of means in the neighborhood of the sufferers have in many instances done all they could to put the thumb-screws on; in other words, make loans of money, or food, or seed, to the people in distress, and at the same time secure themselves by mortgage to suchan extent that the victims can never work out of it in this world. In this way one-horse merchants and capitalists expect to make one-horse millionaires of themselves in a very few years.

We may be taking some liberties with the officer in question, in thus giving publication to that which was told us in private conversation, but on the whole we cannot see where the harm will come in by setting forth the meanest phase of the situation. These extortionists, according to his account, have sent out report, to the effect that the amount of suffering was greatly over-rated. Letters came to General Ord's headquarters of so conflicting a character, that the only way left was for that officer to send out members of his own staff to thoroughly reconnoiter the country. Brisbin was one of these, and afterwards was delegated to come to this coast. In the meantime, the United States army and Congress together have contributed largely to the destitute people thereaways, to say nothing of the donations otherwise. In this way the [illegible] [illegible] wolves of the prairies have been [illegible] [illegible] poor where the four[illegible] [illegible] have been more we[illegible]

WOODHULL [illegible]

The stavings [illegible] [illegible] things Lum [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] unknown, on the part of our [illegible] neighbor of the San Jose Mercury, are matters of continual interest to us. The humiliation of his namesake—the great Robert Dale Owen—as a witness in the Katy King "materalization" business, had a slightly depressing effect on the mind of the Mercury man in regard to spiritualism, and the long drawn-out and universally disgusting Brooklyn scandal case has also slightly dampened the free love ardor of our Santa Clara neighbor, but still he is not quite down. He came to the surface yesterday in a way that would do Madame Woodhull proud; in short, as to that, the Beecher-Tilton affair has of itself rather whitewashed the Woodhull, until the latter is comparatively an angel of light. But it will be remembered that she maintains views on the subject of "natural selection" so far in advance of Darwin that it would make a fancy horse keeper ashamed of himself; but not so the editor of the Mercury. The ocean of filth involved in the Brooklyn business is so far from drowning him that he bobs up like a porpoise—jumps clear above the surface at times, and seems to be rather encouraged.

Alarmed at the overcrowded condition of some countries, and all large cities, he discusses "The Race Problem" from an high and holy stand-point, entirely worthy of a Woodhull. The scriptural injunction to "multiply and replenish the earth," is all wrong; he would limit the number of children. Speaking of man and his supposed dominion, the editor says:

> "May he improve the breeds of domestic animals, and the varieties and qualities of the fruits that gladden the earth, and shall he leave the creation of his own species to blind chance, to unfold amid the noisome weeds of ignorance and vice?"

He concludes that "agitation is what the world needs on this subject," and so we are threatened with a revival of Woodhulism. But the San Jose advocate attempts to put it in another light, as follows:

> "We think we see the 'beginning of the end' in the coming emancipation of woman. Give to woman a fair share of the world's work, make her self sustaining and independent; teach her that marriage, simply as a means of support, or as a matter of convenience, is only one remove from prostitution, and that the crowning debasement of womanhood is the bearing of unwelcome offspring. With woman thus emancipated we should, perhaps, have fewer marriages, but they would be truer and holier, and more beautiful. We should doubtless have fewer children born into the world, but the breed would be vastly improved."

And this, he adds, "would be one grand step towards the millenium." In other words, let there be a general throwing down of bars, and such vigorous roosters as Beecher would get all the cakes and ale, while the weak-backed and spavined chaps would have to "stand down the hall." And this is the San Jose editor's idea of the millenium. We can better understand why the Mercury is so radically "independent" in politics, and nothing old-fashioned, nor even prevailing customs are good enough for him.

WE had a call to-day from P. L. Sampson, agent in this State for the sale of the Centennial silver medals, struck off by authority of Congress. He had specimens with him for sale, and a subscription book showing the names of people who have made purchases. The medals are of pure silver, and contain about one dollar's worth of that article, and are sold for $3 apiece. They are a handsome thing for a fine purpose, and enable most every patriot to take some solid stock in the great national exhibition. The agent's address is 312 California street, San Francisco.

NEW YORK, March 17.—At the session of the Board of Education to-day, a communication, signed by a number of the Trustees of Catholic schools, was received, requesting the appointment of a committee to confer with a similar committee connected with Catholic schools, to consider on what terms Catholic Parochial Schools may be admitted to the benefits of the Common School System, subject to its tenets as regards the course of instruction, methods of discipline and general management.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Secretary Delano has taken steps to bring to Washington a delegation of the Sioux for the purpose of negotiating for the extinguishment of their right to the Black Hill country.

AN Omaha dispatch says: "There is but little credence to be placed in the stories of miners from the Black Hills. It is generally considered to be a movement of interested parties, who hope to reap a harvest in outfitting people."

Gas Fixtures.—John Spencer adopts this method of notifying his patrons and the public, that he has just received a fine assortment of gas fixtures of the latest patterns, elaborate and cheap, and intends to sell at San Francisco prices. Plumbing and gas fitting at reasonable prices, and all work warranted. Broadway Station.

Which started last evening about 7 o'clock kept up most incessantly all night.

Employment.

A young man advertises to drive coach. Notice will be found in "fifty-cent column."

Morrell's Minstrels.

Charley Morrell's San Francisco Minstrels will give a show at the Academy of Music on Tuesday evening next, March 23d.

A Good Day's Business.

At least 3,000 people crossed the bay yesterday to participate in the celebration. The Railroad Company did a land office business.

Twenty Millions.

Assessor Dillon believes that his next returns will show not less than twenty million dollars' worth of real and personal taxable property.

The Last Chance.

The great sale of oil paintings will positively take place at Grand Central Hall this evening. Those in want of choice works of art should not fail to attend.

Dust Hear!

If you want to envelope yourself in obscurity, just go out on San Pablo or Telegraph avenues, and stand in the center of either, and you will be seen no more.

Don't We!

We would beg to step aside from the legitimate channels of journalistic esthetics, and ask the reader an ingenuous question: Don't you think we look "sassy" to-day.

Treasure Shipments.

The shipments of treasure overland per express during the week ending yesterday, consisted of $788,225 in gold coin, and $90,617 40 in silver bars, making a total of $378,842 40.

Some Tall Cussin'

Don't Believe It.

The "wearing of the green" was yesterday in vogue at the University. The students adorned the lappels of their coats by fastening thereon huge bouquets made of grasses, clover, etc.—Alta.

That looks like a fulminating enlargement of elongated veracity. We didn't hear of it—so it can't be.

Scarce.

No traces of a Hibernian were discovered on our streets yesterday after 10 o'clock. All in San Francisco. We saw one about 12 o'clock leaning most disconsolately against a tree in the City Hall yard; but he was detained on this side by the county.

Remember

The great sale of $60,000 worth of dry goods to be disposed of at auction at the store of N. Skerrett, 634 Market street, San Francisco, commencing today. Mark Ezekiels will be the auctioneer, which is equivalent to a speedy disposition of the whole stock.

Assessment Levied.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Livermore Gold and Silver Mill and Mining Company, on the 13th instant, an assessment of ten cents per share (shares $100 each) was levied. This assessment is payable immediately at the office of the Secretary of the company, in this city.

University Types.

The class of '76 meets to night at the University, for the purpose of making arrangements to set up and print the lengthy catalogue, the Blue and Gold, annually issued by the graduating class. They will do the work in the printing office attached to the University.

Assessment Blanks

Have been left in most all of the houses of Oakland by Assessor Dillon's deputies. It now only rests with the tax-payers to make up the statements, and present the same to the Assessor—with the "spons," if they see fit, although they are not compelled to pay their taxes for some months to come.

The Target Practice.

Two more rounds are to be fired by the University Cadet Corps, before the target practice contest is virtually decided, Lieut. Bice having won the first round on Tuesday last. Captains Alexander and Chamberlain and Major Edwards have been appointed by the Cadets a Committee on Prizes, which will be awarded at the conclusion of the practice.

Subscriptions for the Sufferers.

Gen. J. S. Brisbin, who was delegated by the Kansas-Nebraska sufferers to visit this coast to raise means for their relief, was in Oakland yesterday making arrangements with our people to extend aid to this deserving object. The General will give any information necessary upon the pitiable condition of our fellow-countrymen in those unlucky States, and as he is their legitimate representative, his statements are authentic and deserving of especial recognition at the hands of Oaklanders. Subscription lists have been started at the drug store of Sanford, Kelsey & Co., Mayor Webber's drug store, the Oakland, Union and Alameda County Savings Banks, Jerry Hamilton's saloon, Grand Central Hotel, Taylor & Co.'s, corner of Front and Washington streets, the Postoffice, and at Wells, Fargo & Co.'s.

THE GIPSY CAMP.

A Remarkable People—Visit to their Quarters at the Point—Fortune Telling—Their Religion—How They Live—Their Customs, Etc.

Freighted with the usual amount of reportorial assurance, we yesterday penetrated the well-known camp of the self-styled Egyptian fortune-tellers, or Gipsies, by which title they are better known, located near the Stanford stables, at the Point. This camp has been in existence for at least a decade of years, and there is scarcely an Oaklander to whom it is not familiar. Who the party are, and where they came from, however, is a matter not quite so well known. The remark, "It is only a gipsy camp," is a common one, and the stranger receives no further intelligence concerning these people without he personally invades the premises, observes their customs and habits, and sees for himself. They keep to themselves, are quiet and unobtrusive, and consequently excite but little attention from the outside world.

Prompted by an ungovernable curiosity to know further about such a peculiar "race," and with a desire to furnish the readers of the TRIBUNE with a little interesting local matter, we paid our respects to the Madame, and was ushered within the enclosure. The person who extended us this civility was a woman, apparently about forty years of age, with a cross eye and turn-up nose. From her personal appearance, however, we should say she was not designed by nature to adorn a parlor or ornament a piano stool. Her skin was shriveled, and her complexion akin to that of a Chinaman's, while her countenance gave evidence of innumerable woes and hardships. She was clad in garments that were evidently cast away by some of the ladies of the neighborhood, and looked as though they had done their duty on her person many months ago. She was engaged in washing; and the cleansed clothing was carelessly laid out to dry upon stacks of wood.

We entered a tent, and the sight that met our eyes was one that we will remember for some time. Evidences of uncleanliness and poverty were everywhere observable; kitchen utensils, such as pots, kettles, frying-pans, etc., occupy a corner behind the stove, which latter article, dark with the accumulated layers of greese and dirt, and devoid of legs, sits square upon the boards that answer for a floor. In the extreme corner of the tent is a large bed, but no bedstead, and it has the appearance of being able to accommodate some five or six persons, which, perhaps, it does. Two violins, one tambourine and three concertinas, lying in various parts of the tent, seemed to indicate a musical taste on the part of some few of the "tribe." A number of rude boxes, which answer for chairs, complete the interior adornment of this singular habitation. Two other tents adjoining this, but smaller in size, are similar in their interior furnishings. The people do not seem to mind the cold weather, and use the same covering the year round. They huddle together in one confused mass, and enjoy their slumbers doubtless much better than if they were snugly ensconced between the snowy covering in some of our palatial mansions.

We approached the Madame, and opened a conversation:

"How many do your family consist of?" we inquired.

"'Taint a family," she answered, "we are all separate. What do you want to know for?"

"Oh nothing," we replied; "simply to give your business a puff if you give satisfactory answers to our questions."

"Be you the man what makes papers?"

"We are!" we responded proudly.

"Well, just say that if anybody wants their fortins told, I kin do it. Do you want yours told?"

"No, Madame; we have no desire to know anything of the future."

"Well, I'm the girl what kin tell anybody anything they want to know. Just say that in your paper."

We repeated our question as to the number of the tribe.

"There be ten on us."

"How many males?"

"Four."

"All here?"

"No. Three on 'em are out in the country working. One is my husband; he is a cutler, and drives around town sharpening things. Mebbe you've seen 'im?"

"We have," we answered. But how do you support yourselves?"

"Well, our men go round the country and get ond jobs, and bring back their earnin's. I make somethin' myself—me and the old woman—tellin' fortins."

"How long do your men stay out, and where do they go?"

"Well, one on 'em is in Klavras county, choppin' wood; nother is in San Hosay, peddlin'; tother one is up the Sacramento river, mindin' cattle. They stay out from three ter five months, and then cum back. When we are all here we have good times."

"Doing what?"

"Well, we have dances, play keeards, and other things. Lots o' neighbors cum and visit us, and sumtimes we go callin' on them. But they like to see us enjoy oursels."

"Are you ever disturbed by anybody—hoodlums, for instance?"

"No, sir; they dar not cum round here. We keep to oursels and they keep to theirsels."

"What is your religion?"

"Piscopal. All on us ar Piscopalyuns."

"Where do you worship?"

"Right here. We say our prayers, and do our own thinkin'?"

"Do you ever have any domestic troubles?"

"No, sir," she answered indignantly. "We never have anything of the kind; we are all peaceable, and love each other."

"Ah, you love each other. Is your love confined to husband and wife?"

"No. We love any on us. Each one can love 'tother if he or she wishes. But we never get them ar divorces, as you call 'em!"

"Never divorced, eh?"

"No. We live together whether we agree or not. We have no law to separate man and wife. It is a disgrace."

"Supposing your husband was to abuse you, would you still live with him?"

"To be sure: but he don't dar to do that!" and a defiant look overspread her countenance. "We are as strong as the men, and they know it!"

"Your principles seem to be good, Madame"—

"You bet they be!" said she, interrupting us.

"But do you all live equally?"

"Of course; if one makes twenty dollars it is divided; the same with a ten cent piece. Sometimes the neighbors gives us somethin', and we tell their fortunes for nothing!"

"You say you are good fortune tellers? What method do you employ?"

"Well, I take your hand and see things—see yer future."

"By divination?"

"I guess so. I kin tell what yer goin' to do to-morrow, or where you will be in a year, who you are going to marry, and all them things. Don't yer want to know. 'Twon't take long."

"Not to-day, Madame. At some future time we may visit you for that purpose?"

At this juncture a dirty-faced girl of some five years commenced pulling on the Madame's dress, and wanted her nose wiped, which was instantaneously done with a piece of old matting. The proceeding was so touching that we were constrained to take an immediate departure.

"Good day, Madame."

"Good day. Say, Mister, if you say anything in yer paper, just tell 'em I kin tell fortins ekal to any on 'em, will yer?"

New Soda Fountain and Washer.

Messrs. Sanford, Kelsey & Co. have placed in position their new soda fountain and glass washer. It is a unique and novel sort of arrangement, and attracts considerable attention. The fountain is an ordinary one, but artistically finished. The glass washer is a decided novelty. The tumblers, after use, are inverted upon perpendicular wires, and by touching a part of the machinery underneath, they revolve, and little streams of water are ejected both inside and outside the glass, thoroughly cleansing them. In the action of the streams lies the revolving power. It is well worthy of a visit.

New Importations.

Messrs. Harris Bros., the Broadway clothiers, have just received a new importation of spring goods, which, for beauty of style and finish, cannot be surpassed on the coast. The stock consists of beaver dress suits, black, blue and brown, fine diagonal dress and business suits, gents' and boys' furnishing goods, etc. Messrs. Harris Brothers are determined not to be outdone in the matter of low prices, and it behooves those in want of goods of this description to give them a call. The store is located at 903 Broadway.

Desirable Property.

By card in another column it will be seen that Messrs. Gladding, Surryhne & Co., No. 956 Broadway, have considerable choice property for sale. They offer a number of lots in the Watts' tract, for from $2 to $7 per front foot. Call upon them, and they will furnish all the information a man wants concerning property in Alameda county.

Newspaper Circulation.

The Call is again fussing about its circulation.—Alta.

And some papers are fussing for the want of a circulation.—News.

Our neighbor is not a bit backward in promulgating its condition.

More Rain Needed.

The farmers hereabouts are complaining of the effects of the recent northers, and say if they don't have a shower or two, they fear their crops will be ruined.

Property for Sale

Edward Hogan offers his fine property for sale on the most reasonable terms. See the advertisement in the "50-cent column.

Silver Leaf Dance.

The Silver Leaf Social Club will give its second invitation social at the Academy of Music to-morrow (Friday) evening.

Divided.

Superintendent Campbell has thus far divided four classes in our public schools, and the system is said to work well.

The Vault.

The new County Court House will soon be ready to receive the $4,000 vault that Rhoda is trying to pilfer.

Good Times.

The University students are indulging in lectures and picnics. Don't they have good times?

Merchandise.

Forty-seven cars of merchandise arrived from the East day before yesterday.

Once More.

To-morrow the Hurll case will come up in the Third District Court.

Immigrants.

Nearly three hundred immigrants arrived from the East last night.

Meeting To-Night.

Oakland Chapter, R. A. M., meet to-night.

Mrs. Proctor has been in constant practice since 1867. Her seeing powers are Nature's gifts from a child. Examining and treating chronic diseases is a specialty. No matter with what disease you are afflicted, give her a call. In a trance she recovers lost and stolen goods, tells of absent friends, voyages, lawsuits, detects crime, and reads the very thoughts and intentions of her calls. Stocks and mining a specialty. MRS. S. H. PROCTOR (late Madame Burr), 463 Twelfth street, opposite Bowen's grocery.

A Bonanza in Furniture and Upholstery goods.—To reduce our immense stock on hand in store, and at factory, we will sell at wholesale factory prices for 60 days only, at our sale and warerooms, Nos. 1064 and 1066 Broadway, near Twelfth, Central Block.
SCHREIBER & MEYER.

POLICE MATTERS.

Considerable business in the Police Court this morning, and St. Patrick has much to answer for.

Four drunks—two of whom were women—submitted to the usual penalties in such cases.

Ah Yea, on a charge of burglary, will be examined on the 22d.

The case of Thos. Lewis, charged with violating a street ordinance, is set for the 19th.

Richard Kingston, on a similar charge, on the 20th.

Ross Evans, charged with peddling without a license, was fined $20, or ten days in jail.

The case of Emma Hill, charged with battery, was continued till the 23d.

M. Laursen, accused of violating the pound ordinance, will be tried to-morrow morning.

The Janin Residence Property.

Mr. Henry Janin has purchased a charming four-acre site, abounding in bay-trees and oak-groves, and embracing the very prettiest part of Temescal creek. A splendid villa residence, with bay windows, cupola, billiard room, conservatories, etc., is now in course of erection on this site. Mr. Janin has already had numerous offers for the property, but he will retain it for himself. Adjoining this, and equally attractive in all respects, are the residence grounds of Mr. Louis Janin, upon which it is expected he will erect a correspondingly fine building. The Janin property is most eligibly situated, and when the residences are completed, the beauty of the locality will be unsurpassed.

Don't be Too Polite.

A young man wanted to be excessively polite this morning, but he burnt his fingers. A lady was entering the depot, dragging beneath her train a newspaper. The young gentleman put his foot on it, and a peculiar-looking roll of Harper's Bazar made its appearance on the ground. He suffused with blushes, and beat a hasty retreat, amid the tittering of the bystanders. A little bustle only was the result of the mishap.

How Was It Done?

Now, how in thunder did that "bouquet and button-hole" article get into the Alta and News on the same morning? Did the two reporters take a drive to the University together, and observe those green sprigs in the button-holes of the students, or did one reporter accomplish that task, and give it to the two papers? Ah, ah! "Methinks I smell a large-sized rodent."

Arrests this Morning.

Officer Thomas arrested Tom Lewis this morning, on a charge of violating the street ordinance, and Michael Laursen, for violating the pound ordinance. Both parties are out on bail.

Valuable Residence Site.

Judge Glasscock, of this city, is the owner of some beautiful property near Temescal. He has recently sold to Louis Janin one of his premium sites, a five acre lot, situated on University avenue, and crossing the creek at the bridge.

Sad Accident.

Mrs. R. P. Thomas, residing on East Twelfth street, near Tubbs' Hotel, fell down a flight of stairs one night last week, and sustained a fracture of the collar bone, besides receiving other serious bruises. Her condition is considered extremely critical

A Blushing Reporter.

Among the bills presented to the Board of Education on Tuesday night, was one for "concentrated lye." The Transcript man blushed to the color of a new red wagon when the bill was read.—News.

A foul, a wicked, a most dam-ned lie! A reporter blush? Santa Maria! Young man, you need experience.

On the Way Home.

J. M. and G. C. Walker of Oakland, will arrive from the East to-night.

Coachman and Gardener.

See notice in the "50-cent column." A good chance to obtain help.

—Deacon Stiles was a Millerite, but he failed to convince his wife of the truth of his doctrines. On a Winter night he awoke her, exclaiming, "Arise, wife! I hear the chariot wheels of God." "Lie still you old fool," said the practical wife; "the Lord wouldn't be round here on wheels with such good sleighing."

OVERLAND ARRIVALS TO-NIGHT.

Following is a list of passengers to arrive by the overland train due here this evening:

Yung Wing Marries a Connecticut Girl.

Yung Wing of Canton, China, Chief of the Chinese educational commission now at Hartford, was married recently to Miss Mary K. Kellogg, in Avon, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. H. Twitchell, of the Asylum Hill Congregational Church in Hartford, the pastor being a particular personal friend of the bridegroom. The bride wore a dress of white crape, imported expressly for this occasion from China, and elaborately trimmed with floss silk embroidery, and also the customary marriage veil. Her brother and sister attended as groomsman and bridesmaid. The house was very beautifully decorated. After the ceremony a fine collation was served, in which Chinese delicacies mingled with more substantial dishes of American style. Messers. Yeh Shu Tung, manager, and Yung Yun Foo, teacher of the commission at Hartford, were present at the ceremony in national costume, but the groom, who has long since adopted our style, appeared in full evening dress. The bridal presents were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Wing left on the evening train for a short wedding trip, via New York.

Dan De Quille's Latest.

Down in Missouri, a yaller gal once gave in her experience at a darkey revival. Said she: "Brudden an' sist'n, de week afore last in de aftanoon I was out in de blackburry patch an' got up on de fence, when dar I see befo' me sebenteen big yaller rattleum snakes. Den I look behind me an' dar I see sebenteen big yaller rattleum snakes. Den I look on de right side, ah! on de lef' side, ah! an' dar I see sebenteen an' elebenteen moah big yaller rattleum snakes, an' every mudder's son of dem snakes had his tail up an' his mouf open, jist a sayin': 'We am de resurrection and de life; got down off dat fence an' come unto us.' But den I knowed it war de debbil. I jis' turn to an' pray de Lord, an' in less'n one minnit de Lord he sent me a pair of goolden slippers. Den I put on dem dar golden slippers an' I jis' scoot out over de backs of dem rattleum snakes, all de same as Dan'l come out of de den of lions."

This is what Minnie Myrtle Miller writes to the San Francisco Chronicle: "Dream on, my Oregon! Love and love again, ye dwellers by the margins of the seas. Land of humid airs and heavenly drops, let thy maidens blush and sigh to own the tender passion; let thy poets write sweet madrigals within thy dewy dingles, and fewer evils will be done beneath the dreamy shadows of thy hills than in lands where they love not." Perhaps, after all, the world has been a little too severe on Joaquin for his desertion of his family.—Chicago Tribune.

— Cruel!—Smith (usually a shy, reserved and silent man) tells a rather long, but otherwise entertaining, story about an orange, which meets with great success. Brown (when the laughter and applause have subsided)—"Bravo, Smith! Capital, old man! But, I say, you told it better one night at Jones', a few months ago! Jones—"No, no! Where he told it best was that morning we breakfasted with you, Brown, somewhere about the beginning of the year before last!"

— A party of men animatedly engaged in discussing politics before a country store, attracted the attention of an aged agriculturist. "There's somethin' the matter here," he observed to his wife; and, drawing in his team, he lightly shouted to a consumptive individual on the outskirts. "What's afoot?" "Twelve inches," was the sardonic reply. The aged agriculturist swore some and drove on.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE THIRD Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the county of Alameda. Adeline Calzachays, plaintiff, vs. Dominique Calzachaye, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the county of Alameda, and the complaint filed in said county of Alameda, in the office of the clerk of said District Court. The people of the State of California send greeting to Dominique Calzachyas, defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the State of California in and for the county of Alameda, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this District, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days; or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to obtain a judgment or decree of this court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and the plaintiff; also for costs of suit and for such other and further relief as she may be entitled to. For full particulars whereof you are specially referred to complaint filed in this action. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in complaint, and costs as aforesaid.

Given under my hand and seal of the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the State of California in and for the county of Alameda, this 15th day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.
